

Infinity Trail

is a moderate to difficult 3km hike

filled with an infinite number of challenges & incredible photo ops

From the North Washroom Shack head west on the main gravel road, pass the West Washroom Shack and cross the creek.

Find the Quarry Trail sign at the fork in the road directing you to take the path to the right.
Now look to the right and find the Infinity Trail sign posted just within the tree-line on the hill.

Follow the grassy trail which skirts along the tree-line heading north west.

Follow the path as it leads deeper into the woods where you will start to see the handiwork of our resident beavers

Watch for a path leading upward to the left, this is the path to follow to complete the Infinity Trail loop.

For a slight detour, before you take the trail to the left, continue straight ahead and navigate thru some fallen trees.

This "no exit" path will offer additional photo ops of the beavers' habitat which includes their very own Infinity pool.

The Infinity Trail becomes quite hilly and requires a fair bit of agility in scrambling over fallen trees, avoiding hidden roots and of course the biggest challenge, crossing the creek.

Once across the creek, look for a trail that leads up a steep hill and follow this path as it zigzags through the woods. Be wary of a section on the trail where the ground becomes deceptively soft under a carpet of boggy moss. The trail will emerge back on solid ground where you need to turn left and climb another steep hill where the trail joins the Summit Trail. Turn right and then stay left as the path leads you into a meadow. Follow the meadow path back to a clearing above the sand dunes & follow the road back to the park.
